Louisburg College

THE Junior College represents a distinct departure from the older scheme of general education; wherein the student must complete four years of High School and four years of College before graduating.

- That this order of education is not flexible enough is attested by the fact that not more than twenty-five per cent of the students enrolled in the Freshman Class remain through the four college years. About seventy-five per cent leave school for various reasons, with no diploma or other recognition of work completed.
- The Junior College overcomes this deficiency by offering the last two years of High School and the first two years of College, with graduating honors, which will prove of inestimable value in later life.
- In many lines of endeavor, two years of College is sufficient, therefore it is far better to graduate from a Junior College than to leave a Senior College before completing the prescribed course.

- The Junior College also offers the utmost in the teaching quality in that all instructors must have M.A. degrees, while Senior Colleges employ assistant professors under fellowships or scholarships, whose work is generally confined to the two lower classes.

- Again, the Junior College is usually small. Louisburg, for instance, is limited to three hundred. This permits ample opportunity for all students to become well acquainted, not only with each other but with the Faculty as well.

- This teaching quality of the Junior College is reflected in the academic records of those who graduate and finish College work in a larger College or University.

- You are invited to write for more information about the Junior College, particularly Louisburg, especially as it may pertain to your own needs and ambitions. Please address the Registrar, Louisburg College.

Louisburg College is among the oldest of our country's institutions of learning. It is co-educational.

FOUNDED in 1779 as Franklin Academy, the College has, with a few changes in name, filled the same place as is now occupied by the more than four hundred Junior Colleges in the United States today, and all these one hundred fifty years spent in building the character of our youth have more than justified its existence.

• So Louisburg is rich in tradition; it has a background and spirit which only mellowed age can give. It breathes an atmosphere of culture and refinement born of many years of devoted service.

• But Louisburg does not rest upon the glories of its past, it keeps abreast of the times, and while retaining all that is good and true of the old, it willingly accepts the advantages of the new.

• Louisburg is Modern. Conveniently located, just 30 miles from the State Capital on State Highway 56, Louisburg is a friendly county seat town of about 2,000, all of whom are intensely interested in the College and the welfare of the students.

• Just a short distance from the residential districts of the town, Louisburg College covers 20 acres of beautifully wooded grounds. Here are the College buildings, the dormitories for young men and young women, the athletic facilities—all that go to make up a complete, well-organized college community.

• On the campus there are the usual student organizations and activities, designed to contribute as much to the development and refinement of the student as to his immediate pleasure and entertainment.

Christian culture without sectarianism; social life without snobbery; athletics without professionals; logic in debates and expression in dramatic art; education inspired by faith and tempered by religion.

- Louisburg is not an expensive School. The Administration of a College is like any business institution. Money should be spent wisely and to the best advantage, so here at Louisburg we have everything we need to make us comfortable in mind and body and eliminate those things which are not essential to a well managed School. This policy of Administration teaches the student the importance of industry and thrift that is so vital to success in later life.

- Expenses of tuition, fees, room and wholesome food are $350.00 per year. So-called "extras" are discouraged in every possible way.

- For information of any kind do not hesitate to write to the Registrar, who will cheerfully answer all inquiries regarding expenses, courses of study or any other matters pertaining to Louisburg.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF BUILDINGS

• These views will give the reader a fairly good mental picture of our front campus, where all our principal buildings are located.

• The athletic grounds, such as the football field, baseball diamond, tennis courts, etc., are conveniently located on the campus. These activities are fostered by the administration.

AND CAMPUS

- Notice the luxuriant growth of grass, the tall, stately trees that cover the campus, affording plenty of shade and cool spots during warm weather.
- All this encourages a healthy outdoor life the year around for our students. Health is a vital phase of education.

COMMERCIAL

Realizing the value of a sound knowledge of business practice, Louisburg affords a well-rounded course in all branches of business training.

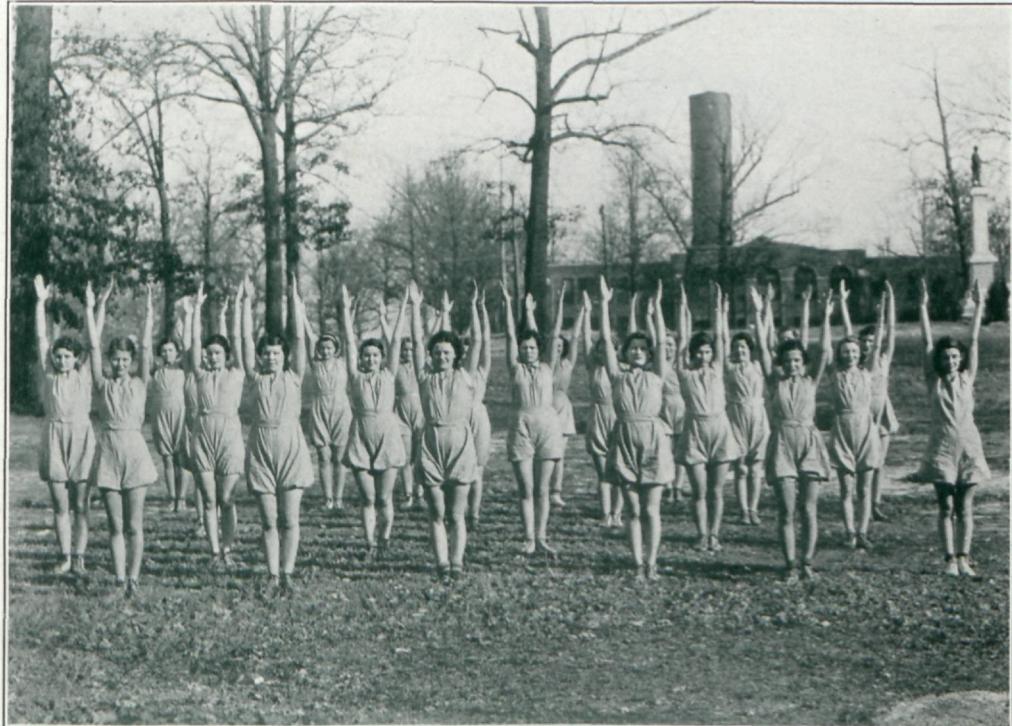

PHYSICAL TRAINING

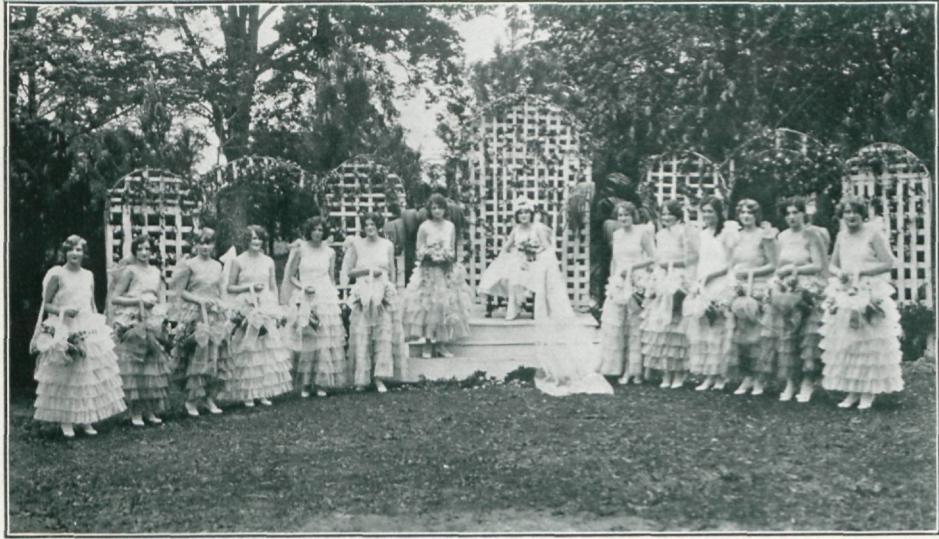

In this modern era a College without healthy sports and physical training certainly cannot boast of a well-rounded education for its students. All normal sports are not only maintained, but consistently emphasized, at Louisburg. Well-trained coaches for both boys and girls are employed. They develop all teams, conduct classes in all phases of Physical Culture—Football, Tennis, Basketball, and Golf (by arrangement with the Louisburg Country Club.) They are urged to enjoy these recreations as their classes may permit. Games in all sports occur during the entire school year. They are not just enjoyed by onlookers, but represent real work by each individual and fine teams. Louisburg's motto is: Work, Play, and Be Happy.
